HEARTS IN BLOOM With Valentine's Day in mind, a man gives his heart-shaped floral design the finishing touches for Baguio City's annual flower festival which showcases Benguet province's flower industry. The festival opened with a parade on Feb. 1 and stretches well beyond the day for lovers on Feb. 14. Indeed, love is said best with flowers. Love, like flowers, blooms best with the formulaic but all-time truism with tender loving care.

Pros, cons for impeach court to consider

By TJ Burgonio

THE SENATE impeachment court should "hold its ground" vis-à-vis the temporary restraining order (TRO) issued by the Supreme Court on the examination of the foreign currency deposits of Chief Justice Renato Corona, according to former Solicitor General Frank Chavez.

The TRO stopping the Senate from compelling Philippine Savings Bank to disclose information on Corona's dollar accounts is an "incursion into forbidden territory," Chavez said in an interview. He proposed that the Senate file a manifestation telling the tribunal that it had no jurisdiction over the impeachment court.

But Chavez said the high court's duty to exercise judicial review was allowed by the Constitution as far as other branches of government were concerned. But he pointed out that the Senate sitting as an impeachment court was not a branch of the government.

He said this was apparent in the fact that the impeachment court was created under

COMMENTARY

WEEK 4 of Chief Justice Renato Corona's impeachment trial featured the testimonies of Internal Revenue Commissioner Kim Henares on income tax returns (this time, of Corona family members) and of several bank officials on the Corona spouses' bank accounts.

This evidence pertained to Articles 2.2 and 2.3 on non- or under-reporting of Corona's statements of assets, liabilities and net worth (SALNs). Earlier, the Senate disallowed evidence on Article 2.4 on ill-gotten wealth, which it deemed to have been inadequately drafted.

But this wasn't a total setback for the prosecution.

Giant hangar sends P-Noy's dream soaring

By Norman Bordadora

THE 35-METER-HIGH and 8,500 square meter hangar built to make the world's largest passenger aircraft flight-worthy had President Aquino thinking of his own grand ambitions for the country.

Its being located in a special economic zone inside the Villamor Airbase and manned by Filipinos have convinced Mr. Aquino his lofty goals are possible.

"Looking at this hangar, and reading through the history and the development of the Airbus A380, only convinces me of our own ambitions for the Philippines," Mr. Aquino said late Friday at the inauguration of Lufthansa Technik Philippines' (LTP) third maintenance hangar at the MacroAsia Special Economic Zone, which is designed to accommodate the Airbus A380—the

Scholars divided on Jose Rizal's true love

By Pablo S. Trillana III
Contributor

(Editor's Note: The author is the supreme commander of the Order of the Knights of Rizal and legal counsel of the Philippine Historical Association.)

WHO WAS Jose Rizal's true love? That's a question appropriate for Valentine's Day. It sounds playful, but it's not.

In recalling the national hero's affairs of the heart, his popular image as a demigod venerated from afar is rendered more approachable. That Rizal, patriot and martyr, also felt Eros' gift of ecstasy and pain like everyone else allows us to view him as both heroic and human.

Rizal had many romantic liaisons. Among the women in his life were the flirtatious Segunda Katigbak; the devoted Leonor Rivera; Usui Seiko or O-Sei-San, a descendant of the Japanese samurai class; Gertrude Beckett, who served him hand and foot; the intelligent and rich Nelly Boustead; and Josephine Bracken, whom

Obama backs down on birth control rule

WASHINGTON—For the White House, the decision announced on Friday to soften a rule requiring religious-affiliated organizations to pay for insurance plans that offer free birth control was never really driven by a desire to mollify Roman Catholic bishops, who were strongly opposed to the plan.

Rather, the fight was for Sister Carol Keehan, head of an influential Catholic hospital group, who had supported President Barack Obama's health care law—and Catholic allies of the White House seen as the religious left. Keehan had told the White House that the new rule, part of the healthcare law, went too far.

"I felt like he had made a really bad decision, and I told him that," Keehan said of the president. "I told his staff that. I felt like they had made a bad decision operationally, and politically it was a bad decision. For me another key thing was that it had the potential to threaten the future of health reform."

Obama announced that rather than requiring religiously affiliated charities and universities to pay for contraceptives for their employees, the cost would be shifted to health insurance companies. The initial rule created a political uproar among some Catholics and others who portrayed it as an assault on religious freedom.

Meeting with his top advisers in the Oval Office last week amid rising anger from Catholic Democrats, liberal columnists and left-leaning religious leaders, a fed-up Obama issued an order meant for Kathleen Sebelius, the secretary of Health and Human Services. Sebelius and agency lawyers had initially told the president they needed a year to work out a compromise that had seemed obvious to some in the administration from the start: Make the new rule more like that offered by the state of Hawaii, where employees of religiously affiliated institutions obtained contraceptives through a side benefit offered by insurance companies.

But in difficult internal negotiations, a group of advisers had [illegible] Vice President Joseph R. Biden Jr. and others and told the president [illegible]. Now the political furor surrounding it was threatening to consume signs of economic improvement boosting the White House and put the Obama reelection campaign on the defensive.

Time was up, Obama told his advisers, according to officials in the meeting. Sebelius, a Catholic who, along with the president's senior adviser, Valerie Jarrett, and domestic policy adviser, Melody Barnes, had pushed hard for the new rule, was not there, but the message came through: Figure out a way to make something like the Hawaii model work. There's a big sum of money in 'little white shirts'

By Princess Daisy C. Oringo

EVER SINCE high school, Ryan David and Philippe Arnaldo often threw business ideas while hanging out with their friends.

Some were weird, others crazy, but there were days when, by a stroke of luck, they stumbled upon brilliant ones.

It was during these days when Ryan remembered his then girlfriend telling him how frustrating it was to find "the perfect white shirt."

A white shirt, like the little black dress, is a staple in every woman's wardrobe. Finding a brand that carries the perfect one, therefore, is like discovering the holy grail of shirts.

Ryan thought then that instead of finding the perfect white shirt for his girlfriend, why not make one himself.

He also knew that if he could actually make that perfect shirt, he could be on to something potentially interesting.

He told his buddy Philippe about this, and they liked the concept. Both were unemployed during that time, so pooling in their capital of P34,000 was a leap of faith for the two, but the venture also got them excited. After much consideration, planning and looking for resources, The Perfect White Shirt was born in 2007.

THEY WORK on a low budget and perform pro bono, taking time from their jobs, but they are high on artistry and quality of performance. This best describes The Creative Thespians Club, Inc., which has earned raves for its production of "Les Misérables."

The group first presented "Les Mis" last September with 18 performances on a weekend, at the auditorium of the University of San Carlos-Cebu Central. There was a clamor for a restaging and this they did Jan. 27-29 at the auditorium of Marcelo Fernan Cebu Press Center. The venue was smaller, but the intimacy obtained more than made up for it.

"Les Misérables" is an all-sung musical by Alain Boublil and Claude-Michel Schonberg, based on the famous 19th-century novel of that title by Victor Hugo. It was first presented in London in 1985 and later in New York-Broadway in 1987. It is quite a story which we will not summarize here because everyone should know it.

This second staging in Cebu by the Thespians was memorable in more ways than one. French Ambassador Thierry Borja de Mozota attended the opening night and praised cast and crew for their great effort. The performers were duly inspired and gave a fantastic show, as they did for the whole run of the musical.

Cebu Gov. Gwendolyn Garcia attended the Sunday matinee and watched the entire two-hour show, glued to her seat, amazed at the splendid display of talent. She led the ovation in a standing ovation, and went up the stage to congratulate everyone during curtain call.

"This is world-class," she exulted. "I am glad I came, thanks to my dear friends Marguerite Lhuillier and Marigold Neang who convinced me."

Young people

The cast, crew and staff are composed of energetic young people whose enthusiasm resulted in a very well-crafted production. The Thespians' main aim is to promote culture by way of theater. Who is their leader?

Marguerite Lhuillier, who is most enthusiastic about the group, says they all pitch in, but of course there is a hierarchy available in the printed program distributed on this occasion. "I'm so impressed!" Margie exclaimed. "And not just because my granddaughter is in it."

Pretty Adrianne Marcelle Ugarte alternated in the roles of Young Cosette and Éponine. Her parents, Claudine and Mikel Ugarte, are most supportive, and brim with laudable praise for the group.

"Everybody is good, very good," said Margie. "I've seen the play over and over again, learned the songs, seen every one act. Better in all." She and Claudine introduced us to Renz "Ramy" Alquizola II, who takes a hand in the directing. He heads the cast as Jean Valjean. The night we went, it was Nikos in the role.

Good voices

As Margie said, kudos to everyone in the various roles. Javert—Andrew Esplanada and Carlo Bravo Yap; Fantine—Ingrid Singa, Cielo Ajusllano, Sharo Rosemond and Seras Salinas; Marius—Peter Bernardo, John Falgemta, Mark Pedrenos and Jon Ranolamme; Cosette—Pia Rabile, Paulleo Rosales and Mary Joy Sinar; Gavroche; Epo... Éponine—Aneste Ang, Rodhora Lapulam and Thereze Villaraza; M. Thénardier—Billy Pabomares and Warren Tampong; Madame Thénardier—Stella Estrella, Rina Colalbay Reyes and April Montecalvo; Enjolras—Fitzgerald Gabrumga and Jeremy Mayacoc; Éponine and Young Cosette—Jessalyn Manlhicon and Adelie Ugarte.

They all sang with good voices, acted with convincing emotion and exuded that stage presence so essential for actors to achieve. The same can be said about the ensemble that took on the roles of rumors, work-

CROWDS PACK SM CITY OLONGAPO OPENING

SM City Olongapo, the 42nd supermall is located in Magsaysay Drive corner Gordon Avenue in city's Central Business District, and will serve the customers in Zambales, Bataan, and other nearby provinces.

Great shopping, leisure, and entertainment went to Zambales when SM City Olongapo, SM Prime Holdings' 42nd supermall, formally opened its doors to the public last Friday, February 10, 2012.

Sharing honors with the ribbon cutting ceremony during the grand launch of SM City Olongapo are Congresswoman Milagros Magsaysay and is joined by SBMC president Armie Garcia, Subic Freeport Chamber of Commerce president Danny Piano, Mr. Jobo Magsaysay, SM Prime Holdings president Hans T. Sy, Mrs. Felicidad T. Sy, Monsignor Crisostomo Castro, Olongapo City Mayor James Gordon, Jr., First Lady of Olongapo Anne Marie Gordon, and Vice Governor of Zambales Ramon Lacbain II.

Strategically located in Magsaysay Drive corner Gordon Avenue in city's Central Business District, the seven-storey 40,882 square meter mall will serve customers in Zambales, Bataan, and other nearby provinces.

Situated at the southern part of Zambales and the northwestern interior of the Subic Bay area, Olongapo was once the site of a US Naval Base. After it was turned over to the Philippines, Mayor Richard Gordon worked for its conversion into a Freeport, launching an aggressive international investment promotion program that has made it into a prime industrial and tourism zone.

Today, it is a city known for its innovative methods of urban management, pioneering an integrated solid waste management system, volunteerism, organized vendors, and a color-coded transport system among other things. It has also brought much honor to the country with international awards like the UNESCO Cities for Peace representing Asia and the Pacific in 1997 and the Konrad Adenauer Local Medal of Excellence in 1999.

The opening of SM City Olongapo will be a catalyst for employment and business opportunities, as well as lifestyle trends for residents of this bustling. With the SM Department Store and SM Supermarket as its major anchors, it also features SM mainstays like the SM Appliance Center, ACE Express, Watsons.

Eating out options include popular international and local food chains like Pizza Hut, KFC, Jollibee, Mang Inasal, Greenwich, Chowking, Sbarro Classic, and Holmesian Delights. Booking services and three state of the art digital cinemas – the first such theaters in the city - complete the shopping experience.

For customer convenience, SM City Olongapo has allotted three levels of parking with more than 300 slots, as well as a color-coded jeepney terminal just across the mall.

SM City Olongapo's design team includes DBOb & Associates, Design Consultants; H & SF Architects, Architect of Record; GN Abaste and Associates, Project Manager; and New Golden City Builders, General Contractor.

The SM City Olongapo's skylight helps conserve energy in the mall.

MATTERS OF THE HEART FROM WATSONS PHARMACY

While preparing for Valentine's Day celebrations, it's also a good time to think of other matters of the heart – heart health, that is. And residents of Olongapo and Zambales will be happy to know that good heart – and good health – care is just around the neighborhood, with the opening of the new Watsons Pharmacy at SM City Olongapo.

Heartvit Food Supplement helps lower the risk of cardiovascular diseases.

Cenovis Fish Oil Food Supplement helps maintain healthy cholesterol levels.

Heart diseases, after all, are among the leading causes of death worldwide for both men and women, and yet they are also the most preventable. Here, Watsons Pharmacy shares with us some heart to heart talk.

Manage your health. Heart disease is often linked with other chronic ailments such as diabetes, hypertension and high cholesterol. If diagnosed with any of these, regularly monitor your blood pressure, blood sugar or cholesterol levels, since these can lead to a heart attack or stroke if left unmanaged.

Get moving. Exercise at least 30 minutes a day to improve your heart function. Running, aerobics or brisk walking are simple yet effective workouts, but if you have an existing health condition, it's still best to consult your doctor on which form of exercise is best for you.

Eat healthy. Control your weight, blood pressure and cholesterol by developing a balanced, heart-healthy diet largely based on fruits, vegetables and whole grains. Nutritional food rich in omega 3 fatty acids, as well as olive oil, tomatoes and soy are also good for you.

Quit smoking. Tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide harden arteries and restrict blood flow to the heart.

Manage stress. Stress can put a strain on your heart since it speeds up the heart rate and raises your blood pressure. Keep it cool by practicing muscle relaxation and deep breathing techniques.

Comply with your meds. Along with a healthy lifestyle, medication compliance is important in managing heart disease and other chronic illnesses. Follow your doctor's advice on the correct dosage and frequency of medication. We are often tempted to stop taking medication when we feel better, but this false sense of complacency can actually make the ailment worse, and can eventually lead to fatal complications.

To help you comply with your medication, Watsons Pharmacy offers Compliance Packs for chronic diseases such as diabetes, hypertension and high cholesterol. These are packed in 30s, and now priced 80% less than leading brands to help you complete your dosage intake without going over your budget. Each pack contains a product leaflet that has valuable information on the disease, sensible tips on how to stay healthy and a suggested diet plan. It even gets better with more rewards from partner brands like Omron, Accu-Chek, Health First, High Precision, Wheatgrass and other partners to help you manage the diseases better.

Dear Dad,

Please look upon us and watch over us, keep us safe and guide us as you have always done.

Albert Capotosto

"Cappy"

Passed away from us in peace on February 7, and was cremated on February 9 at the age of 98.

His remains will lie in state at the San Antonio Chapels on Feb. 16 from 3 PM to 10 PM and there will be a holy mass at Santuario De San Antonio at 7 PM on Thursday, Feb. 16.

At still undecided times, half of his ashes will be dispersed in the various waters that he sailed, throughout the world, including Manila Bay, at San Nicholas Shoals to join his beloved wife Virginia.

The rest of his ashes will be interred in the crypts at Santuario, also at a later date.

CREBA leads industry honors for VP Binay, BIR Chief on Feb. 9

THE CHAMBER OF Real Estate & Builders' Associations, Inc. (CREBA) will host an industry-wide recognition and appreciation event to honor Vice-President Jejomar C. Binay, chairman of the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council (HUDCC), and Commissioner Kim S. Jacinto-Henares of the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) following the passage of BIR Revenue Regulation 16-2011 which effectively increased the ceilings for VAT-exempt real estate transactions effective January 1, 2012.

The recognition will be held on the evening of February 9, 2012, Thursday at the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Intercontinental, Ayala Avenue, Makati City in the presence of industry leaders and stakeholders who are members of CREBA, as well as of the Subdivision and Housing Developers Association, Inc. (SHDA), the National Real Estate Association, Inc. (NREA) and the Organization of Socialized Housing Developers in the Philippines, Inc. (OSHDP).

By virtue of the issuance, buyers of residential lots priced Php1,919,500 and below, and buyers of house and lot packages priced Php3,199,200 and below, shall now be exempted from payment of the 12% value added tax. The previous limits which were last adjusted in 2005 were at Php1.5 Million and Php2.5 Million, respectively.

According to Charlie A. V. Gorayeb, national president of CREBA, the additional relief from taxes will be a major benefit for homebuyers and will positively impact government's revenue generation efforts through increased housing construction and other related economic activities.

In January 11, 2011, CREBA spearheaded an appeal to Vice-President Binay for the adjustment of the exemption limits with the consumer price index and inflationary pressures which have significantly increased construction costs between the years 2004 to 2010 as bases. The proposal was subsequently endorsed to the BIR by the Housing Czar.

"The increase in cap will make housing more affordable since the VAT that will be passed on to buyers will now be eliminated, and hence, generate more opportunities for housing acquisition," Gorayeb concluded.
